The Old-Blandford-Church Poem. RICHMOND, May 17, 1878. Editors of the Dispatch: I have read with much interest the names of the multitude of authors to whom the lines written on the wall of "Old Blandford" have been attributed, and now, as the contention and dissension have abated, I wish to inform the readers of your valued paper of the true author of the poetry: It was written by the late General John B. Strange, Confederate States army, who was killed in the battle of Sharpsburg. In the year 1846, while a young man, he was stricken with a severe case of cholera while passing through Petersburg, and was detained at Jarratt's Hotel. On driving to "Old Blandford" for the first time after his recovery, being so impressed with his surroundings, be went into the church, wrote the lines on the wall, and signed "Strange," and not "A Stranger." The little incident is all alluded to in one of his private journals which is still in possession of his family. A Mr. Turner, of Petersburg, also mentioned a few years past having been his companion on the occasion and witnessing him write the lines. It has been a matter of no moment, but since all are anxious as to the author of the lines, probably the certainty of the fact will be satisfactory. Very respectfully, ONE WHO KNOWS.

Editors of Richmond Dispatch: The premium list of the Virginia Agricultural Society for 1878 has made its appearance, and shows a change in many farm-products to suit the growing "small-farm interest" of the State. All who own five acres of acre of corn, wheat, oats, hay, tobacco, cot- ply to ver, Spanish chufas, prickly comfry, Irish potatoes, sweet potatoes, and winter cabbage; $15 for the best acre of yams, rutabagas, mangel wurzel, and any other kinds of turnip; $5 per bushel for the best speciton, ground-peas, broom-corn, German clomen of the cereals, and living premiums on the best specimen of vegetables.

Nothing can now be done to increase the crops of wheat, winter onts, and clover; but the season is good for the two last. Top-dressing or surface-application (the best way of using most fertilizers) can be resorted to with great advantage on corn, tobacco, all kinds of trucks, together with the nondescripts, chufas, and prickly comfrev. All sorts and kinds of manures, made or bought, may be used and worked into the soil during cultivation, and I am in hopes the farmers of the State will do their best to fill up the produce department of the Arrangemements have been or will probably be made to transport persons and material to the fair at reduced rates. And it lacks nothing but will and muscle on the part of our farmers and truckers to make our fair agricultural in fact.

Two sailors happened to be on a military parade-ground when the soldiers were at drill, going through the evolutions of marking time. One sailor, observing the other sailor watching the movements of the company very attentively, with eyes fixed and arms akimbo, asked him what he thought of it. "Well, Jack," replied his comrade, "I am thinking there must be a very strong tide running this morning, for these poor fellows have been pulling away this half hour and have not got an inch ahead yet."
